REPORT ON CAREER IN IT INDUSTRY AFTER B.Tech

Recourse Person Mr.Ch. Anil Kumar, gave a guest lecture on CAREER IN IT INDUSTRY AFTER B.TECH. from January 27–29, 2020, at GIET Engineering College. The topic of discussion is jobs in the IT sector for B.Tech graduates from different streams. Additionally, it was covered what courses should be taken and how to respond to inquiries such as "why did you select IT over other fields?" "Why did you come to the IT field?," etc.

Many individuals, believes that the IT sector only had employment possibilities for programmers and coders. It is untrue, though! A side from software developers, IT companies also employ people in positions like business analysts, business associates, technical content writers, executive directors of digital marketing, and human resources officers. The majority of pupils want to work in the information and technology industries. There is no denying that the information technology industry is the largest in the world and supports the largest number of jobs globally. In the world of IT organizations, there are several ways to realize the desire of obtaining a prestigious position. Due to its daily rapid growth, the IT business has a lot of potential.

B.Tech graduates can thus find a wide range of employment prospects in organizations like Infosys, Tata Consultancy Services (TCS), Wipro, Accenture, HCL Infotech, and IBM. For the purpose of choosing qualified applicants, each organization will have its unique recruitment procedure. Each level of the recruitment process requires candidates to perform successfully.

With the aid of a B.Tech degree in a variety of courses, one can easily advance in the world of IT at countless government and commercial firms. The organizations hire applicants for a variety of professions, including mechanical, civil, and electrical engineers, for a variety of tasks, including the operation of electronic equipment, their maintenance, installation, and development and testing of various tools, machines, and sensors.

Students from the CE/ME/EC/EE branches can participate in placements for IT and other non-core jobs during on-campus placement drives. And if they are chosen, they can gladly decide to pursue it as a full-time job. Candidates are trained in the framework/programming language they use after being hired. Not all IT businesses allow mechanical, electrical, or civil engineering students to participate in their campus recruitment events. However, many IT recruiters offer placement possibilities to students from various academic disciplines, and as part of their hiring process, they hold three to four rounds such as technical and HR rounds as well as verbal and quantitative ability tests. Engineers can accomplish anything, to sum it up!
